Infrastructure fundraising decline levels off

Capital raised eases as 2020 grinds on ccording to IREI's FundTracker database, infrastructure fundraising in third quarter 2020 was on par with second quarter, with seven funds raising nearly $16 billion.

Nearly $16 billion raised in Q3/20

- 7 funds closed during Q3/20
- Average fund size inches up to $2.3 billion

In second quarter, eight funds raised more than $13 billion. This comes after more than $80 billion was raised by 22 funds in fourth quarter 2019 and first quarter 2020 combined.

The average fund size closed in third quarter was nearly $2.3 billion compared with an average fund size closed in second quarter of $1.7 billion. This compares with an average fund size closed of $2.8 billion in first quarter and $5.1 billion in fourth quarter 2019.

Fundraising Trends, Q3/18-Q3/20

During the quarter, Blackstone's secondary and fund solutions business Strategic Partners completed a final close for its Strategic Partners Infrastructure III with $3.75 billion in capital commitments. An equity fundraising target was not disclosed.

Blackstone also announced during the quarter it would acquire a $1 billion infrastructure portfolio from the Alaska Permanent Fund. According to Setter Capital, an advisory firm that specializes in secondary transactions, the transaction was the largest secondary deal involving infrastructure assets through June.

GCM Grosvenor, meanwhile, completed a final close for its Labor Impact Fund with $893 million in capital commitments. GCM Grosvenor said the fundraise was at the high end of its targeted range. GCM Grosvenor's Labor Impact Fund originates and executes infrastructure projects that leverage the inclusion of union labor as a contributing factor to enabling attractive risk-adjusted returns, according to the firm.

GI Partners also completed a final closing during the third quarter. The San Francisco-based private equity firm closed its inaugural Data Infrastructure Fund with $1.8 billion in capital commitments. The fund was oversubscribed and surpassed its initial equity commitments target of $1.25 billion. The GI Data Infrastructure Fund will invest across four data infrastructure subsectors — data centers, data transport, wireless access and tech-enabled infrastructure — primarily in North America. ❖
